unsuccessful candidate for the leadership of the Progressive Conservative party two years ago.

A majority of the cabinet are believed to be in accord with the position taken by Prime Minister Mackenzie King in his broadcast Wednesday night in which he maintained his belief in the voluntary overseas service policy for the present.

One report here last night was that Mr. King had told the cabinet that compulsory overseas service would not be approved by the Commons if brought before it by the government.

Mr. MacPherson, who unsuccessfully contested the Progressive Conservative party in the 1938 election, was, however, said to have been thoroughly in favor of conscription.

In September, 1939, there were only two naval bases in Canada, one at Halifax and the other at Esquimaux, B.C.

Sir Harry Oakes
Murder Mystery
Is Still Unsolved

NASSAU, Bahamas, Nov. 11.—(CP)—A year has passed since Alfred the Martyr was acquitted in the playing of the millionaire Sir Harry Oakes, Canadian mining magnate, yet the most intriguing murder mystery of the decade remains unsolved.

It was Nov. 11, 1943, that a Bahama court jury voted nine to three, to free Dr. Martiny, Sir Harry's son-in-law.

The killer disappeared and buried Sir Harry to death the night of July 7, 1943.

North of Metz, Patton's forces in the Kornhauser area repulsed a minor enemy counter-attack and widened and deepened their new breakthrough across the Moselle river within two and a half miles of the German frontier.

Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' American 1st Army punched out small, new advances in the rain-soaked Western front area south-east of Aachen after repulsing another enemy counter-attack.

Major mines were being encountered.

Hodges' troops also made progress toward Schmidt, 22 miles southeast of Cologne. After minor gains in the fortified line defenses were cleaned out.

The British 21st Army group front in Holland remained quiet. Some miles southeast of Metz, Patton's tanks pushed another breakthrough in the rain-soaked Western front area south-east of Aachen after repulsing another enemy counter-attack.

An infantry column, 15 miles farther southeast, meantime, plunged about seven miles from Chateau Salins to the Hahndouane area, also 25 miles southwest of Saarbrücken.

After a quiet night, the 33rd "Santa Fe" infantry division worked deeper into the Chateau Salins area after seeing all initial objectives a mile and a half to two miles in front of them yesterday.

The 11th and 13th panzer divisions' grizzly remnants of the once crack 11th panzer division, wiped out in Normandy but reconstituted, were offering stiff resistance.

Make "Whale of a Bang" New German V2 Rockets Fall Like Shooting Stars

By HENRY B. JAMESON

LONDON, Nov. 11.—(AP)—The new V-2 rockets fall like shooting stars, and although they are nothing compared to the buzz bombs as a terror weapon, they make a whale of a bang that can be heard for 10 miles.

One who lived through such an explosion less than 50 yards away said "I don't hear any noise whatever before the explosion—then I thought it was a bomb that had exploded."

The first one I saw at night in the country resembled a small explosion. There was a brilliant flash, followed by a jolting bang.

In one incident a Mrs. French, an employee of a bakery which was demolished, was having tea with the proprietor and his wife after the shop had closed.

Western Front Lines
Similar to Nov. 11, 1918

LONDON, Nov. 11.—(CP)—The position on the western front today was roughly similar to that on Nov. 11, 1918, but today the Allied lines were somewhat farther ahead than on Armistice Day 26 years ago.

In 1918 the Allied line ran east to west through Passchendaele, Ypres, and Arras. Today the line runs east to west through the Somme, Arras, and Ypres.

In Scheide Battle

By ROSS MUNRO

With the northern group of armies in Holland, Nov. 11.—(CP)—The Calgary Highlanders fought on South Beveland island during the Scheide campaign and the Regiment de la Chaudiere, Lake Megantic, Que., was in action during several weeks in the Scheide pocket south of the estuary.

These regiments are the latest whose names were permitted to be disclosed as participants in this successful, hard-fought campaign.

The Calgary unit, of the 2nd Canadian Division, fought along practically the whole length of South Beveland island, from the main of the 20th Division from the sea and with British and other Canadian regiments forcing them to withdraw to the island where they capitulated.

Prior to the Beveland action, the Calgarys also were in action for more than a fortnight north of Antwerp. They were in action during several weeks in the Scheide pocket south of the estuary.

May Not Await Next Spring Canuck, British Victories Open Way For Full-Scale Assault on Germany

By ALAN RANDAL

LONDON, Nov. 11.—(CP)—Canadian and British troops on Netherlands soil have, with the clearance of the German paratroopers from the Scheldt area, won victories adding up to two major gains and opening the way for a full-scale assault on Germany. There is no reason to think that this assault will await next spring, either.

The first major gain, of course, was the opening of Antwerp as a supply base. The second was the creation of a strong and compact front in Holland on the northern sector of the western front.

HIGHLY IMPORTANT
Both points are of top importance and both are closely related to the ultimate drive into Germany by the forces of the north—the British 2nd and 1st Canadian armies, the latter with its various formations of Polish, Netherlands, Czech and American formations.

Antwerp is capable of handling 10,000 vessels annually and can probably do much more under stress of war unless the Germans are able to impose new handicaps such as accurate use of flying bombs or rockets or perhaps the mustering of a sufficient bomber force to do heavy damage. The latter point seems unlikely in view of the preponderance of Allied air strength based in Holland and Belgium.

The German high command communique Friday asserted, without Allied confirmation, that Antwerp has been under fire of rocket bombs for weeks and that heavy damage was caused in the dock area and to harbor installations.

month has been a long, tough haul but they now are free of the horrors of fighting in southwest Holland's dikes and flooded fields.

The clearing of the Scheldt means that the Allies now have an unbroken line on the northern sector of the western front. This front now sprawls across Europe in the shape of a gigantic long-bodied and inverted letter "L".

The northern sector, or short cross-stroke of the "L", runs west to east from where the Maas and Waal Rhine empty into the sea through the Hollandse Diep for a distance of some 50 miles before joggling sharply north to around Arnhem.

The area about Arnhem is the "helf" of the "L", and from there the front turns sharply south to the Alps and the Mediterranean.

PRESENT POSITIONS
The Canadians and the British, with the Canadians on the left flank nearest the Scheldt area, they have just cleared, hold the northern or west-to-east sector. From Arnhem southwards to the British 2nd army also holds a short portion of the north-to-south line.

Sinatra's Crooning Harmful

HAMILTON, Ont., Nov. 11.—Frank Sinatra "would be doing a public service to parents and children of this continent if he would stop singing," Dr. Angelo Patri of New York, noted child psychologist and educationalist, said here yesterday.

He referred to the apparent effect of Sinatra's singing on thousands of youths throughout Canada and the United States.

"If a person gets a disease, he wants him to sing Friday night and were excited to a nervous disease and it is harmful thing. Apparently such singing upsets nerves that are already keen."

Meet de Gaulle

Churchill and Eden In Paris for Talks

PARIS, Nov. 11.—(BUP)—Flourishing his trade-mark cigar and beaming happily, Prime Minister Winston Churchill arrived in Paris yesterday for his first visit in five years.

Churchill and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden flew to Paris aboard a Dakota transport for conferences with Gen. Charles de Gaulle and other French officials on France's role in peace and post-war Europe. Reports of their arrival were held up until today.

When the big transport plane came down at a field outside Paris, Churchill, stepped out, hatted forward to greet de Gaulle, seized his hand impulsively and cried in French:

"My dear General, this is indeed a pleasure."

On his triumphant return to Paris, the war of German occupation, Churchill found the capital still bearing the scars of Allied air raids.

The party included Mrs. Churchill, Mrs. Eden, the prime minister's daughter, Sir Alexander Cadogan, permanent under-secretary of foreign affairs, and Nicholas Langford, Eden's private secretary.

Mrs. Eden already was in Paris. She came on ahead to assist the welcoming committee.

The official reception committee was headed by de Gaulle.

Churchill stood bareheaded in the biting wind while a band played the British and French anthems.

Churchill and de Gaulle drove into Paris, flanked and preceded by police and troops on motorcycles. The route from the airport was lined with police and gendarmes.

Directly after his arrival, Churchill had a preliminary 30-minute talk with de Gaulle in the General's office.

"The Canadian soldiers overseas think about the affairs of their country is only too evident in letters received by Maple Leaf. It is a most healthy sign and interest will continue when we are back again on Clwy Street."

Meanwhile, the present issues must be decided by our government at home, not over here.

"Regardless of religious or political beliefs or of province, the Canadian formations now overseas have shown the finest example of united action in the history of our country. The purpose of their unity has been to beat the German."

"There never at any time has been any official military or political editorial direction given to Maple Leaf. Its editorial policy stands entirely with its own editorial staff. Under these circumstances a factual record of events only will be published in Maple Leaf."

"Any opinion, forecasts or speculation on domestic political issues are out."

Remembrance Day

At least while the present generation lives there is no danger that Remembrance Day will fall into neglect, and if the Canadian people set a proper value on traditions it will be observed with deep feelings by the generations to follow. All across the Dominion today—and in the other Allied countries as well—the thoughts of men and women will be carried back to those who slept in Flanders' Fields, to the sacrifices which they and our fathers made and set up to the glorious example they set in loyalty and fidelity.

Again our men are fighting, in the same theatre and elsewhere, for the same basic issue. To them also will go the thoughts of those at home, and for their preservation and success prayers will rise from every heart. To the men who have been added and are adding to the meaning of Remembrance Day. They have seized the torch, have kept the torch, they have doubled the obligation upon us to keep this day as a solemn anniversary and a pledge of devotion to freedom and right.

Edmonton Lags

A fitting and very practical act of remembrance today will be to buy another Victory Bond. They arise among the bonds and the handing over of personal savings in return for them is part and parcel of Canada's war effort. It is a part that does not compare with that played by the men who in the former and present war took up arms to halt the march of aggression at their own peril. But it is none the less a part, a necessary part, and one of the ways in which civilians can have a share in defending their own liberty and that of mankind generally.

In Edmonton, those who can at all buy an extra bond have the further inducement that the city approached the deadline without having secured the definite quota.
It was the only city in Alberta which yesterday had not reached the goal. That is a regrettable predicament, and one that in the province and the seat of government.
It does not reflect the concern of Edmonton people in the outcome of the war, in its progress, or in the men at the fighting fronts. It can only be explained by a supposition that there was too general assumption that the objective would be gained without extra effort.

That is disclosed to have been a mistake. When the returns for today are in, it will be almost certain that Edmonton has redeemed itself and gone not only "over the top," but well beyond the mark set.

Spanish Tales

It is difficult to take too seriously the pleasant news that outraged Spain is rising against her fascist oppressor. The reports of revolts against Franco should be taken with considerable reservation. For it is a likely explanation that Franco and his supporters, in Spain, are so busy with devising to consolidate the country behind them by spreading stories of intervention from abroad.

Information regarding centres of resistance to the Falange inside Spain is conflicting. Outside the country, however, there is known to exist a well-organized,
well-armed and fairly well-equipped force which has its centre in Southern France.

This has fought well against the Germans and its relations with the resistance forces and the French are good.

Reports that it is causing disorder in Southern France and that General de Gaulle is sending troops to the area, are probably false and designed to justify Franco in offering to de Gaulle to send troops to assist him in establishing order in France.

As there are no British or American troops in Southwestern France, the activity of the Spanish Maquis there are a purely French affair.

Thus, there is no good reason to hope at present that the victory paid little the little fascist tyrant has actually reached a dangerous point.

Political Trends

The returns show that the Democrats developed their main strength on Tuesday in the Solid South. They carried the population, and the industrial areas generally. It was the Republicans who pulled the heavy votes in the corn belt states, to which New Deal farm-protection measures had been particularly directed.

Manufacturing centres in the Union went to the Republicans. The Democratic support came from areas less highly industrialized. But on Tuesday the industrial vote went to the lower tariff party, while the farm vote in the north Mississippi basin went to the party traditionally linked with high tariff.

It is possible that the voters paid little attention to these basic creeds of the two parties. But if they did, there is the curious paradox that while industrial workers went strongly for low tariff, the farm vote in the great central area went strongly for high tariff.

If conclusions are to be drawn as to probable trends of opinion in Canada, the assumption is that in the Dominion also the drift in industrial centres is toward moderate tariff barriers against imported goods. That farmers in Canada also are heading toward a protective policy is more doubtful, because the Canadian home market cannot consume more than a fraction of their products and the Dominion policy must be aimed to trade the surplus for its export.

Vienna Next

The Russian communists apparently decided to take Budapest in their stride; instead of by-passing it, leaving an investing force there, and driving about Vienna, not much more than a hundred miles away.
The Austrian capital is by far more important, and its capture would seal the fate of Budapest in any case. With plenty of men at their disposal to take either one the Soviet generals would hardly have decided to stage an immediate all-out attack on the neutral city unless convinced that it would not seriously delay their operations beyond.

Military strategy is not the sole consideration in that theatre. Political calculations also enter into the case. One of the points long ago agreed upon by Russia, the United States and Britain is that Austria shall be kept out of the war and set up again as an independent country.

Back of that decision lies the fact that Austria is not dominantly Nazi, nor even pro-Nazi. It has been, and is, being passively submitting because it had not the power to resist with a chance of success, and because a sprinkling of Quislings had sought to bring it into the war.

When the Russian force roll into Austria, there is a strong probability that a nation-wide anti-Nazi uprising will break out.
Such an uprising, like the one in Czechoslovakia, would be like to be over-looking that point, Budapest is only a way station on the road to Berlin. Vienna is a much more important objective.

Chinese YMCA Triples YMCA

Despite wartime difficulties the YMCA in China has tripled its membership since 1937 and now has 110,000 members, according to Dwight Edwards, for 38 years American YMCA representative in China. Mr. Edwards has returned to this country for a brief visit, his first since 1929.

Between 17 and 20 YMCA buildings have been closed because of Japanese occupation, but 15 new ones have opened in Free China, he said. The war has brought a sharp decrease in the number of western YMCA secretaries, and a marked increase in the amount of local Chinese support of their YMCA. The Chinese YMCA program is entirely self-supporting at the present time.

TODAY'S MESSAGE

Remembrance Day

THIS is Remembrance Day. It is a day of tribute to those who have died in war. It is a day of dedication to the cause of human liberty for which their sacrifice was made; a day to ponder the heroism, the idealism, the high spiritual urge that are the requisites of peace.

So many millions have died on battlefields since the first Armistice Day in 1918, so much destruction has been wrought in the last five years, that man everywhere must offer up on this day a prayer of intense supplication; a prayer that tyranny may be overthrown forever and freedom be given a new birth. It is a prayer inspired by the tragedy of lands laid waste, of innocent lives lost, of millions of fellow-men of all races and creeds enslaved by ruthless oppressors. It is a prayer for lasting peace.

But prayer alone will not bring peace to the world. Those who pray must rise from their knees with the will and determination to work for peace. We must keep faith with the dead. We must be devoted to the task of consummating their sacrifice. Only living minds, hearts, and hands can convert battlefields into valleys of peace; build up new and brighter homes; fashion a new world fit for the children of the heroes we honor.

Remembrance Day, 1944, dawns on what we hope is the final phase of the second world war. It is a day on which we must ask ourselves: Will another generation be called upon to atone for our failure, jointly and individually, to respond to the challenge which is already taking shape? The question becomes inescapable as the world approaches a new and fateful rendezvous—with peace.

Hungary Shrine Wrecked in Raid

Allied air raids over Debrecen, Hungary, have resulted in destruction of the city's historic Reformed Church, known familiarly as the "Great Temple." It was in this building, during 1849, that the Hungarian Diet proclaimed Hungary's independence after the fall of the Habsburg dynasty.

Extensive damage has also been caused to the Stephen's shrine, university and its chapel building, while a 400-year-old college has been completely gutted.

Claud Churches

Of Old Country

Brooks, la. of Arkansas, a prominent layman, has returned from a 20-day visit to England and France with praise for the churches of all churches in Great Britain.

"The maintenance of ties between the church groups will enable them to present a united Protestant position in the rebuilding of Europe, and that is greatly to be observed in an article for the Arkansas Baptist. I agree, that everything tending toward unity which does no violence to the appreciation of the individual is good, for we generally are centrifugal forces in the social system and threaten to break it into fragments."

Today's Sport Parade

By Jack Cuddy

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—J. Sigfrid Edstrom of Sweden, acting chairman of the International Olympic Committee, is confident that the Olympic Games will be held in 1948, possibly at Lausanne, Switzerland.

Speaking at a formal gathering of reporters at the Hotel Gotham, the 71-year-old industrialist from Stockholm emphasized three points: (1) Neither the war nor criticism by "some destructive elements" have extinguished the "Olympic flame"; (2) the international Olympic Committee still exists as a communicating body; and (3) the Olympics can be held "on some scale" in '48, if the European phase of the war is ended before then—even though the Pacific phase is not finished.

Edstrom, a big, gray-haired man who speaks English surprisingly well and who gets an assist from a sturdy yellow case for his rheumatic left knee, declared that the international committee is scheduled tentatively to meet some time next year at Lausanne to make plans for the '48 games. Although the great Edstrom's site talk was somewhat obscured by a painful polio conjecture, one remark indicated the United States would not be considered seriously for the '48 site, regardless of the war situation.

COSTS TO BE MINIMIZED
He said "because of the financial burdens carried by the great war by those European countries involved in the war, it doubtless will be deemed preferable to have the site at some central location—to minimize the cost of travel for the teams." This would rule out trans-Atlantic trips for European athletes.

He mentioned neutral countries like Sweden, Spain and Portugal, in addition to Switzerland, adding "maybe Finland will then be out of the war and in a position to undertake the task." The '48 games were slated to Helsinki, Finland, but war prevented their being held.

Some of the foreign newspapermen at the press conference expressed the hope that Finland would be able financially to stage the '48 games after the war. The committee against the Russians and the Germans.

Edstrom seems to favor Lausanne, which cradled the modern Olympic movement 50 years ago and which is headquarters of the International Committee—although it never has been the site of an Olympic.

Earl McCready Coming to Meet Indian Grappler

Two more changes were announced yesterday affecting the wrestling program billed for the Empire Theatre next Saturday night, Nov. 18.

Earl McCready, 245-pounder, is coming after all and has been named as opponent for Chief Tussock, the 200-pound Canadian Indian grappler.

Bob Krus of Portland, Ore., originally slated as mat man for the Chief, now will engage Kolo Stasch, an eastern horizontal gladiator.

Principals for the preliminary show, which will be a midweight affair, have not yet been named. The first bout will commence at 8 p.m.

East US Hockey

At present Edstrom seems to favor Lausanne, which cradled the modern Olympic movement 50 years ago and which is headquarters of the International Committee—although it never has been the site of an Olympic.

Yankee Stadium Sold Out Army Should Beat Notre Dame But Will Have to Keep Moving

By RED GRANGE
The Original Man-in-Motion
NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—On the heels of the physical beating in Baltimore, Notre Dame bumps into another man-power problem in tackling Army today in a Yankee Stadium that has been sold out for weeks. The Cadets match Navy in numbers. They are not so experienced, but their backs also hit hard and run like Buddy Young.

You have to pick Army, but the Future Generals had better keep scoring. There is nothing else of consequence in the east. Yale should get over Brown. Cornell visits Franklin Field just in time to catch Pennsylvania's Kiddle Korps on the rebound. Holy Cross is the choice over Colgate.

Navy takes Cornell in stride. West Virginia figures to handle Rutgers the same way and that goes for Penn State against Michigan. Bucknell against City College of New York. Barnbridge against the Cherry Point Marines and Muhlenberg against Princeton.

Dartmouth is given a shaky vote in its engagement with the New London Coast Guard. Villanova, Lafayette only has to repeat over Rutgers and Ursinus in taking on Franklin and Marshall.

On the strength of their comparative scores against Purdue, I've got to pick Michigan against Illinois in a contest of speed.

Purdue continues on the high road of success against North western.

Wisconsin gets back on the right track in defeating against Iowa. Indiana should enjoy a similar experience at the expense of Minnesota. Michigan State gets the call.

ITS OKLAHOMA IN BIG SIX

OKlahoma should win the Big Six championship by beating Missouri, but the Sooners can't pull any punches. Iowa State has too much for Nebraska. Kansas should repeat. Kansas State without difficulty.

I have a hunch California will repeat over U. C. L. A. and like the Alameda Coast Guard against Saint Mary's Pre-Flight and March Field over Washington.

Denver possesses too many guns for New Mexico and L. Glenn Dobbs and the Second Air Force are equally well equipped against Fort Warren.

Lift Suspension Tami Mauriello

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—(AP)—The New York State Athletic Commission Friday lifted its suspension of Tami Mauriello, Bronx heavyweight fighter, after he promised to go through with a bout against Lee Oma of Detroit.

Mauriello was suspended several weeks ago when he cancelled a bout with Oma, pleading illness and inability to get in shape. Three weeks earlier Mauriello had knocked out Oma in the eighth round of a scheduled 10-rounder which Oma went into on 48 hours' notice.

Promoter Mike Jacobs of the 20th Century Sporting Club immediately re-matched Oma and Mauriello for a 10-round bout in Madison Square Garden Friday, Dec. 8.

Broke Up Irish Streak

16 Points in 10 Minutes Called Greatest Grid Feat

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—Chick Meahan, veteran coach, and thousands of others who saw the performance, consider Southern California's 16 points in 10 minutes in a game, breaking a Notre Dame unbeaten streak at 26 late in the season of 1931, the greatest of football feats.

The Trojans certainly pulled that one out of the fire. Notre Dame led 14-0 in South Bend with five minutes of the last quarter gone.

Jim Vistak broke his nose going five yards through the line from the Notre Dame 40, and Orville Mohler came in at quarterback with Galus Shaver switching and fallback. Three reverses with Sparring carrying put the ball on the 20, and Shaver scored on a lateral. Goal was kicked.

CAUSE SEEMED HOPELESS
Another five minutes were frittered away before Sparring, on another reverse, carried the ball to the Notre Dame four. Shaver again scored, this time over the Irish left tackle, but Joe Kurk blocked the kick-attack attempt for the extra point, and the Trojans trailed 14-3 with only four minutes to go.

Capt. Stanley Williamson and his mates thought of three reverses, but only four minutes to go. Their chance seemed remote.

But two remarkable passes—from Shaver to Sparring and Hall—set up 63 yards and put a now hungry Southern California varsity back in the thick of things.

An offside placed the ball on the South Bend 13, and Mohler called for a place-kick by guard Johnny Baker.

As the Trojans swung into their position, the whistle was blown. Homer Griffith started into place-kick, but after a few steps, he abruptly bearing instructions from Coach Howard Jones.

Griffith had no more than reached the field when he was waved back by captain and center Stan Williamson and Mohler.

The team preferred that the ball be held by Mohler rather than by Griffith, who was a technical substitute sophomore, and Mohler.

Trapper Kayoes Baiting Bruin In Third Round

PRESNO, Calif., Nov. 11.—(AP)—A scared trapper told Friday how he baited a big black bear in a rowboat while halfway across Huntington Lake.

The trapper, John Vistak, wanted to bring the bear back alive to cage at a public zoo. He knuckled it, unconsciously, pulled a gunny sack over its head, loaded it in a rowboat.

When the boat reached the middle of the lake—a good half mile from either shore—the animal waded quickly he was willing to have his commands disregarded.

Notre Dame got nowhere with desperate passes in the last 60 seconds.

In between the passes that put the ball in position for the winning place-kick, two Notre Dame men went up for a pass and came down pulling and tugging for the ball, each thinking the other a Southern California receiver. The result was a loose ball, an incomplete pass and another opportunity for the Trojans.

Had one of the Notre Dame players hung onto the ball, Southern California hardly would have had another crack on the offense.

On such little things are big games decided.

Omaha Referee Is Kyo Victim
OMAHA, Nov. 11.—(AP)—The main bout on the Omaha fight card Friday night between Larry Watson, 171 pounds, of Omaha, and Lou Angellotti, 162 of Chicago, resulted in a first-round knockout.

But it was referee Alex Flier of Sioux City, Ia., who stepped in to break the fighters after a cut appeared over Watson's eye, but he wasn't quick enough and a right hook by Angellotti caught him squarely.

Flier, however, got up and finished the fight, keeping well out of Angellotti's way. The fight went to Angellotti on a technical knockout at the end of six rounds.

Sydney Bamber Jasper - Edson Tory Candidate

Well-known farmer in the Webburn district, Sydney Bamber, was unanimously chosen the Progressive Conservative candidate for the Jasper-Edson federal riding at a convention held Friday at the Masonic Temple which was attended by party adherents representing many sections of the district.

He was nominated by Major J. A. Walkenden, M.P., and his nomination was seconded by James Paul, prominent Maslin district farmer.

On nominating Mr. Bamber, Major Walkenden referred to his distinguished service with the 1st Airborne Division in the Great Western campaign in 1914, and after service in France and Belgium was demobilized in 1919.

BORN IN ENGLAND

Mr. Bamber was born in Lancashire, England, and came to Alberta in 1908. He settled first at Lac La Poudre, and later moved to his present farm.

Mr. Paul stressed that in John Bamber the Progressive Conservative true party had a leader who was a practical farmer, and also an agricultural promoter. He pledged to correct the nation's error in providing incentives to farmers with a fair return for their labor, and that Mr. Bamber would stand up for the farmer.

He said that under the Progressive Conservative platform the farmers and farm workers would be granted a proportionate share of the national income through a permanent policy of guaranteed prices which would be fixed by law.

Mr. Paul said that the farming industry must be understood as a business, and that the government drive prices to unprofitable levels.

SPECIAL STUDIES

It is suggested that a special study should be made of health services so that farmers of Canada can be provided with better medical and hospital facilities.

Following the convention committees were named to start organization work in the different parts of the riding.

Identification Badge Sought By Reservists

SAINT JOHN, N.B., Nov. 11.—(CP)—Senior officers representing reserve units here are planning to seek support of Military District No. 7 headquarters in forwarding a request to national defence headquarters that a badge be issued to reservists.

The badge would be authorized to identify reserve soldiers and that wearing of the general service badge by full time members of the reserves' administrative and training staffs be approved. It was reported yesterday.

In publishing the report, the Evening Times-Globe said in a newspaper story:

"One of the causes of the poor attendance in recent months at weekly training periods of the Reserve Army has been the actual loss on the part of those below the rank of commissioned officer of being mistaken by the public for a zombie."

"Some of the reserve, wearing in uniform to fight, have been subjected to derisive shouts of 'zombie', and conditions have come to the point where many of the reserves refuse to attend drill unless they are able to get a taxi or a friend's car to take them to the training grounds. No just reason active or reserve, wear the GS badge so as to express recognition of name-calling on the public streets."

OFFICERS CAN'T QUIT BECAUSE THEY'RE 'SORE'

OTTAWA, Nov. 11.—(CP)—While Maj.-Gen. F. R. Phelan, director-general of the Reserve Army, remained silent yesterday on protests received from reserve officers against the government's reinforcement policy, a Reserve Army official said officers could apply for retirement, but they would have to produce something better than "I'm sick at the government" to have their applications granted.

Under normal procedure reserve officers cannot "just up and resign," he said. They must first apply for retirement, giving reasons of health or essentially to other duties.

CONSIDERED ON MERITS

"Then applications are considered on their merits and a decision is given, but officers can't just resign because they're 'sore' at the government," he said. "The government will consider them on their merits and if they are found to be fit for service they will be sent back to the front."

THE OFFICER SAID THAT ONLY A VERY SMALL PERCENTAGE OF THE RESERVE ARMY'S 500 OFFICERS ARE 75,000 MEN ACROSS CANADA "SEEM TO HAVE DECIDED TO BE IN PROTEST OVER THE GOVERNMENT'S REINFORCEMENT PLAN."

The Reserve Army was in a slightly different position than had defence troops because "the reserves are committed to service anywhere in an emergency."

LAST POST SOUNDED

Two minutes later the plastic pipes of Last Post, by Rudyard Kipling, and then there was a deafening crash of brass. The parade then moved along Macdonald Drive to the cenotaph.

Here before the stately stone edifice raised to the memory of the dead of the First Great War a short service opened with the general salute from the band.

Wreaths were then deposited and the colors of the Canadian Legion were in salute. The band played "The King's Carol" and "The Last Post" by Major J. C. Bower, followed by Last Post and Reveille.

There was a short prayer by Canon Tremblay and the service closed with The Star Spangled Banner, God Save The King by the RCMP brass band.

PARADE REFORMS

The parade reformed and marched north along 102 street to Jasper Avenue and then there was a salute by the band. The parade then moved along Macdonald Drive to the cenotaph.

LUCKY DUNCE

A CERTAIN woman dropped a salt shaker one morning while she was cooking in her kitchen. She picked up the cracked shaker and tossed it into a trash basket. She would be a very much surprised woman if she knew just what happened to it afterwards. The garbage man picked up the basket of trash, threw it into his truck and finally dumped it onto the town trash heap, where the Teenie Weenies found the damaged salt shaker.

The Teenie Weenies were out of salt. There wasn't a single grain of salt in the little village and the Indian had just caught a huge fish nearly five inches long. The little folk could eat only a small piece of the fish before it would spoil unless they had plenty of salt to preserve it for future use. When properly salted down the fish would keep and feed the Teenie Weenies for a long time.

Salt is not easy to find. Once they found a fine supply where an ice cream freezer had been dumped, and they picked up several thimblefuls of the hard grains of rock salt. Another time they hacked off a piece as big as a walnut from a huge block of salt at a cattle lick and that lasted them a long time.

"We must get some salt and get it quickly if we expect to keep that fish," the Cook said.

"I'll run over to the town dump and see if I can find some," announced the Dunce, who was very fond of salted fish.

"Shucks!" laughed the Sailor. "You'll never find salt on the dump."

The TEENIE WEEENIES

BY WM. DONAHAY.

"Say! Is that so?" exclaimed the Dunce. "Didn't I find four lumps of sugar there once?"

"Yeah, but we want salt," said the Sailor.

"Well, maybe I can find some. We often find useful things there," said the Dunce as he hurried off toward the trash heap.

The Dunce soon came running to the village with the news that he had found salt. Several of the little men, armed with a few tools and a number of acorn shell baskets, followed the Dunce back to the dump.

After the metal top had been chiseled away from the glass shaker, the Sailor filled the baskets full of salt with a Teenie Weenie shovel. The little men carried nineteen basketfuls of salt to the Teenie Weenie village and there was a lot left over after the fish had been well salted. Now the Teenie Weenies will have salted fish for a long time, and their good luck came because a woman who lives in one of the big houses, dropped her salt shaker and then threw it away.
